

Celtica Is Coming!

What is Celtica? I'm glad you asked.

"Infectious fun" is the best way to describe Celtica, a session band ten years in the running around the St. Louis Metro East region. The band's name reflects the Celtic musical world - traditional tunes and songs from Ireland; Scotland; Wales; Celtic regions of France, Spain, and Canada; as well as traditional and original music from the United States. Celtica's command of ballads, sprightly traditional tunes, and stories about the music, is guaranteed to engage any audience.

The band has performed with several St. Clair County area musical groups, including the Great Rivers Choral Society and the Belleville Philharmonic Orchestra, at both the Southern Illinois Irish Festival and the Missouri River Irish Festival, Union United Methodist Church's Fine Arts Concert Series, as well as Belleville's Art on the Square.

Celtica Light will be with us in worship on World Communion Sunday, October 7.

Celebrate communion and the church around the world with us. Bring friends. I'm bringing mine!

A special love offering will be taken that day to support this event.

All of the members of Celtica are pictured but a smaller group of Celtica will lead us in worship on October 7th.
